Subject: Arlington's Oldest Barbershop?

Arlington, Virginia, May 5, 2004 -- On July 5, 2004, the Williamsburg Barbershop and Lloyd A. Woody will each celebrate their 48th anniversary serving Arlington residents.

On July 5, 1956, Roy Hunt opened the doors of his Williamsburg Barbershop for the first time to the Arlington public. Joining Roy at the start in North Arlington's Williamsburg Shopping Center was Lloyd A. Woody. By 1968, Mr. Woody, joined by the founder's nephew, Robert L. Hunt ("Bob" to generations of patrons), purchased the business from Roy.

Since that time, the Woody-Hunt duo have given countless haircuts to young and old alike. In those many decades, the only substantial change was the relocation of the shop from their shopping center's North Sycamore Street side to the present location on the center's Williamsburg Boulevard façade.
